Poem by Granddaughter Shakira Quor

*Pop is kind and generous, once he bought me a car,
It had a major oil leak, it didn't get me far.*

Pop is a chef or so he likes to think,

If only he started cooking, before he started to drink.

Coffee with him before he went to work, is something I won't forget

But asking if he had any jokes, is something I'd often regret.

He tried to make us laugh with his riddles and his rhymes,

We just had to pretend, we hadn't heard them a thousand times.

The nicknames we had for each other are too rude to say up here,

But the memories and the love, I will always hold so dear.
